

2011 CAMP GUIDE

There are many camps and summer programs for children and teens in the Baltimore-Washington area. The list that follows represents a sampling of what's available.

Information for this guide was supplied by the individual camps. If Maryland Family magazine did not receive updated information, data from our 2010 Camp Guide has been used. We recommend visiting camp websites for the most updated information. If a camp listing is incorrect, needs updating or has not been included, please contact us immediately at bstein@patuxent.com so we can get the correct information in Patuxent Publishing Company's February Camp Guide.

Camp programs offering primarily recreational activities or those with a substantial outdoor recreational component require certification by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. State-certified camps must comply with staffing and medical requirements in accordance with the Maryland Youth Camp Act. In addition to being certified, many camps are accredited by the American Camp Association, which evaluates camps every three years.

For more information or to find out if a camp is certified, call the state Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, Division of Community Services, at 410-767-8417. For a list of accredited camps, call the American Camp Association at 1-800-653-1409 or visit www.acacamps.org. All camps are located in Maryland unless otherwise noted.
